Backflow Assembly Tester (BAT) Certification Glass Hammer Award

"Glass ceilings have been broken, but more have to be broken."

- Madeleine Albright

The BAT Certification Glass Hammer Award was created to support the Washington Waterworks Operator Certification Program's workforce development initiative by promoting women's involvement in the field of Backflow Assembly Testing.

The BAT Certification Glass Hammer Award may be awarded to any woman who:

- Is not currently a certified BAT in Washington State
- Holds a high school diploma or GED
- Is not currently enrolled in a future BAT certification exam

This award is for the practical portion of the BAT Certification Exam only ($200) sponsored by Washington Certification Services. Award recipients will be responsible for payment for the computer-based (written) portion of the certification exam administered by AMP/ PSI ($100). Washington Certification Services is partnering with Washington Environmental Training Center to also offer a week long BAT certification training course to each award recipient for 2019 - a $680 value.

Two BAT Certification Glass Hammer Awards may be awarded each calendar year.

The 2019 BAT Certification Glass Hammer Award will open for application on November 1st, 2018. First review of applications begin January 14th, 2019.
